

The Death of the Dead-Hand Poison Put?

Article

06.30.2015

Insights: The Corporate & Securities Law Advisor

Morris Nichols attorneys Bill Lafferty, John DiTomo and Mac Measley contributed this article on the Delaware Court of Chancery ruling in Healthways II concerning a so-called “dead hand proxy put” provision in a credit agreement. The authors discuss proxy put trends, history of the case and practical implications.

#

William M. Lafferty, John P. DiTomo, and D. McKinley (Mac) Measley, “The Death of the Dead-Hand Poison Put?” Insights: The Corporate & Securities Law Advisor (June 30, 2015)

PROFESSIONALS

John P. DiTomo

William M. Lafferty

D. McKinley (Mac) Measley

PRACTICE AREAS

Corporate & Commercial Litigation

